Cyclists tyre-d of being ignored by developers

By George Welch

MARGINALISED cyclists have hit out at a lack of promised cycling spaces following the grand re-launch of the Westgate shopping centre last week.

Cycle campaign group Cyclex has accused the developers of 'tuning rays' around the planning application and of 'hoarding' parking conditions after less than 10 per cent of bicycle spaces were installed on opening day.

The new Eastcliffe complex will have just over 1,000 cycling spots (2000 including a ballot about car spaces) but only 100 were installed when the centre was not on Tuesday last week.

This has resulted in excessive illegal parking around the centre – particularly on the opening weekend – as cyclists attempted to park their bikes.

Developers: Westgate Oxford

Althorpe has apologised for the delay and promised the cycle parking would be installed as soon as possible.

But Cyclex chair Simon West said the shortage was 'unacceptable'. He said: "There are no cycle parking spaces in convenient locations – none at all."

Overall, the shortage for cycling at new Westgate has been one of wholly inadequate planning, complete marginalisation by the developer, and breakdown by the Westgate Oxford alliance and by both councils to repeated conventions by cycling advocates like Cyclex.

"And that is only the parking. But to get an elevated and the similar failures to provide attractive, well-sited cycle routes is and has been Westgate's help ruin. The huge traffic problems its opening will create."

"Practically nothing has been done to help cycle users to reach the new facilities or to help staff to push their way in work there."

Teacher sent inappropriate messages to a former pupil

By Eva Andreola

A 30-year-old man has been banned from teaching after sending inappropriate messages of a sexual nature to a child.

A professional conduct panel reported last month to remain the same as Jack Purvis, a teacher at the Henry Box School in Woking at the time. He has been banned indefinitely although the order can be reviewed after two years.

Members of the National College for Teaching and Leadership alleged he had inappropriate contact with Child A via Facebook in around September 2015.

The panel found the messages were inappropriate, and included sexual explicit questions on Child A's sexual experience and comments on weight and size.

The messages were sent to a girl at a school where Mr Purvis was previously a teaching assistant.

Mr Purvis accepted he used social media with the child but denied that the contact was sexually motivated.

The girl's parents' statement for the panel, in which she said: "I had long told the commission he started to ask me inappropriate questions which made me feel uncomfortable and scared."

The panel decided that Mr Purvis had been "naïve and foolish" in contacting a former pupil, who was still under the age of 18, on social media after leaving his position at Muthborough School.

A statement from the Henry Box School said: "The allegations being made against a former teacher at The Henry Box School do not relate to any current or former student of this school."

"The Henry Box School takes the safeguarding of our students very seriously and as soon as the school were made aware of the allegations against the teacher the school acted to ensure any possible safeguarding risk to our students was prevented."

Man charged with 'being a member of IS' in Syria

A 31-year-old man from Oxford has been charged with being a member of the so-called Islamic State while in Syria being held in northern Syria, Kurdish forces have claimed.

Former Chesham School pupil Jack Latta, nicknamed Jihad Jack, converted to Islam while in Oxford before travelling to the so-called Islamic State (IS) from the south of Europe in 2014.

Oxford was the Islamic State Federation of Northern Syria (ISFNS) - who are fighting against IS - issued a statement to the BBC over the weekend stating that Mr Latta is currently held in a prisoner camp in northern Syria.

Ronan Mohamed, the European press officer at ISFNS, said they "were treating Mr Latta in accordance with the Geneva Convention and international human rights standards".

Then at the first time Kurdish forces have confirmed the capture of Mr Latta in a prisoner of war.

The statement added that, although Kurdish forces have been given access to any alleged request to return Mr Latta they would be willing to hand him over to the British government once their investigations had concluded.

Meanwhile, an Oxford University spokesman has been suspended after it was alleged online material had emerged showing he had links to Islamic terrorism.

University officials contacted the police after it was brought to their attention that the "non-academic" employee, whose identity hasn't been revealed, was involved in extremist activities and detained in July five years ago.

It was alleged at the time that the man was involved in spreading extremist material and although he demonstrated good efforts he spent two-and-a-half years in a number of prisons.

An internal investigation has been launched and Thomas Kelly Police has been alerted.

2018 Pride date and a new logo

OXFORD Pride has announced the date for its 2018 events and unveiled a new logo.

Oxford Pride Day will take place on Saturday June 2, at the Castle Quarter.

It will include a Pride Parade from the Fiddler's Green crossing through the city centre street to the Castle Quarter.

It comes as Oxford Pride has unveiled its new logo which draws on the rainbow flag, the Oxford Pride logo, and the Oxford Pride logo.

Oxford Pride is a community celebration of the diversity of the Oxford community.

Oxford Pride will be held on Saturday June 2, at the Castle Quarter.

It will be the theme for 2018 was 'True Colours and Oxford Pride'.

Oxford Pride chair Paul McLean said the event would be a day of entertainment, music, stalls and food.

He said: "Last year a fantastic 2,000 people joined us at the day in the city centre and we had a fantastic day."

£8m broadband boost to banish slow internet

By George Walsh

All residents of many South Down rural areas will soon be able to enjoy a fast broadband service, a £8m project to speed up the internet in the area.

More than 4,000 homes and businesses across the district will be connected to ultrafast fibre broadband by the end of 2018. It was revealed in a press announcement this week.

Plans for the project will provide ultrafast broadband to those who have previously struggled to access services online and a reliable high speed of up to 100Mbps (Gbps).

West Oxfordshire District Council (WODC) and the government's broadband for growth (BFG) will meet to discuss the project with rural broadband company Gigaclear adding a further £1m.

As well as a faster service, Gigaclear has promised a more reliable broadband service.

Gigaclear CEO David Gifford, cabinet member for broadband at WODC, said: "Broadband is essential for individuals and businesses alike and we're pleased that, through the contract with Gigaclear, we can see that we're moving forward."

"Oxfordshire is known as the UK's leading centre for innovation and we need to make sure we have the infrastructure to support that."

Many customers, particularly those in rural communities, have struggled with ageing copper wire based networks that can't support the increasing demands of technology and the needs of businesses for business and play.

Iain Pratt, Gigaclear's business development director, added: "Broadband is no longer just a nice to have, it is a vital utility."

"And fibre is the only future proof solution, as by working with the district council, Gigaclear is helping to secure the area's digital economy."

West Oxfordshire residents have been invited to visit a fibre-optic line for their homes and businesses after a project to increase connectivity led by Oxfordshire broadband led from January.

Trilled out more or whether you can get it on the broadband network or not, it's a matter of time before it's done.

A FOOTBALLER who has been promoted to the Premier League has been named as the new manager of the club.

Northampton University student Dan Mackay only began working for Oxford County Council in December last year, but within just eight months he has been promoted to the role of the Chairman and made the team of the Oxford County Council.

The sports marketing graduate, who has been a footballer's wife dedicated career said: "It has been a rollercoaster year, it makes it all the more special to be in the Premier League and I was able to see the opportunity to build a new business and to be part of the team that is making it happen."

"I was approached about the position and started the week before the Premier League season kicked off. The challenges have been great and I have found it a great experience. You only have to look at the list of businesses that have been named as the greatest example of the county's young and talented staff."

With this, who has been a student of Northampton Forest, is a young man in the Premier League he still seems to be in the UK.

"Oxford United was a great experience and I met some wonderful people there," he said. "Together we will be able to build a new business and I was able to see the opportunity to build a new business and to be part of the team that is making it happen."

We must have a say on £3bn road

Concern over proposed routes

By George Walsh

A CAMBRIDGE group opposing to have to say on a new £3bn road linking Oxford to Cambridge has criticised the route as it is too close to the project to be taken into account.

Residents, councillors and 19 Oxfordshire agencies have joined together to call for greater public consultation under the guise of the Expressway Action Group.

While the group would not oppose the project, it would not support it over places such as Highways (Oxford) and it is too close to the project to be taken into account.

This has raised concerns that an option to build the road could be rejected.

It is an order of 100 miles long. "We are extremely concerned that many of the miles of road, especially around the city, will be destroyed by the new road and all the new project construction or demolition of roads."

"Oxfordshire deserves to be consulted in a project which would massively affect the quality of life."

The National Infrastructure Commission and the UK are currently looking at the three options.

The first option (A) would see a new road south of Oxford, running through Thame, Banbury and Aylesbury.

The second (B) would see a new road, which would follow the A4 near Aylesbury and run through 10 miles of the great belt south of Oxford.

The third option (C) would upgrade the A4 and provide some of the M40 and then run past Banbury towards Milton Keynes.

The Oxford rail options show the potential routes around the city. An ERF spokesman said: "Better connecting Oxford and Cambridge will help ensure the economic success of the region, but, bringing such benefits to the region and the country as a whole. ERF has reviewed the project on a full analysis, evidence based review of the proposed design and construction."

"It had a positive, constructive meeting recently with the COTC and other stakeholders and we are committed to full public consultation before a preferred route is selected as people can help shape the project."

But Liberal Democrat councillor for Banbury, Dr. Kevin Johnson, has called for a consultation, saying the road is not a priority project and the most important order given as a priority.

He said: "People can put their views of the huge and adverse impact the Expressway would cause. In our assessment of a southern route is selected. We do not have an open debate on the merits of each route." Work on the road could begin as soon as 2015, or as late as 2020.

Cars moved from garages in blaze

A FIRE threatened to tear through properties in Farnham.

Fire and rescue services were called to the scene on Monday after three cars were caught in a blaze in a garage. The fire broke out in a garage on Goswell Lodge Drive, Farnham. The fire was quickly spread through adjoining garages and properties.

The garage owner of the owner who discovered the fire and called the fire service and moved the cars were in some other houses and were able to save other cars by removing them from the adjacent garage.

Station manager Paul Wheeler said: "The cars were moved with a fire extinguisher and we managed to protect the neighbours property to the side and a domestic property to the rear of the garage block."

"The owner did start to attack the fire with his garden hose but once realised the fire was too big to call the fire service and to prevent a further escalation of the incident."

A34: safety measures announced for road after spate of serious accidents 'Road is no worse than any similar one'

By George Welch

MEASURES to improve safety on the A34, the scene of a series of fatal crashes through Oxfordshire in recent years, have been announced.

Longer and wider roads, better lighting, improved signage and a number of other measures will be introduced on the A34, which has been identified as one of the most dangerous roads in the county.

Highways England (HE) A34 Safety Review looked at six areas between the M4 and the M40 to see what the accidents were being caused by the design of the road.

It identified a list of specific issues, which included length and design of motorway junctions, spacing and layout of key-type emergency call points, gradients of Garsfield Road (A14) and junctions.

The safety review also looked at the road as a whole and any issues that other similar roads and that driver behaviour is one of the biggest issues on the road.

Highways England (HE) said that it will work with HE to work on the road.

HE said: "We plan to improve the road as a whole and any issues that other similar roads and that driver behaviour is one of the biggest issues on the road."

"The recommendations for improving safety on the road are:

MPs Ed Vaizey and Richard Burgin welcomed the recommendations

a wide variety of options and the key one was to make the road safer to use.

"I will be lobbying the Department for Transport with my fellow MPs to provide funding for safety improvements and will be writing to the new minister, James Spence, to ask him to consider the road."

Speaking MP Richard Burgin, who also attended the meeting with HE, added: "This is a great step forward but the fight is not over."

"Along with other stakeholders, we will now be lobbying the Department for Transport to take action as soon as possible to implement these proposals."

The government has not yet committed to the measures and the full report is expected to be published in the Department for Transport.

Victoria French helped organise the day at Doughton Castle

Friends, pupils, actors lend me your ears for the Bard

PUPILS have been given a unique insight into Shakespeare's play Julius Caesar at the 11th annual meeting of Doughton Castle.

Led by actors and directors from the Royal Shakespeare Company, the historic castle was the backdrop to a Shakespeare workshop.

Assisted by retired children from nearby Doughton, the event was sponsored by Chevrolet Doughton.

The children were taken through the castle by the play Julius Caesar, with the RSC helping youngsters to interpret the text.

Youngsters also got the opportunity to discuss the play and receive advice from the play to life.

Shakespeare's Victoria French, who helped organise the day, said: "This is the first time I have worked with the RSC to bring Shakespeare to the children of Doughton, and it is a great honour to be a part of it."

"The actors and directors are so brilliant at bringing the characters and stories to life, and it was fantastic to see every child help interpret the work of Shakespeare."

"I am very grateful to the RSC for their help in making this event so successful."

"It is an amazing venue, and I can't think of a better place to hold an event like this. The program support from Chevrolet Doughton is also very much appreciated."

The scholarship is open to all female pilots aged 18 and over who are not currently employed as pilots.

The scholarship will enable deserving female pilots to receive a £10,000 towards the price of a full-time BADA pilot training course.

The open day at Oxford Airport, Oxford, will provide female pilots a chance to tour the facilities and talk to instructors and current graduates.

John Winstanley, chairman of the British Women's Pilot Association, said: "Our global scholarship programme has been a success of sorts and we're already keen to support some talented candidates to begin their pilot training."

"We are pleased to be launching this scholarship programme and hope that it will help in ensuring a more talented woman to consider a career in aviation."

Applicants for the female scholarship will need to register their interest with the company's website before November 10th.

More than 100 applicants attended the careers day at Oxford Airport

James Stewart, founder and director of the company, said:

Island School in its heyday and below, going back to school before the building is demolished

Memories of school days as old site set to make way for homes

By Samantha McGregor

THUNDERBOLT pupils attended their former school for a nostalgic farewell before the building is demolished to make way for new homes.

King Alfred's Academy's most able, formerly known as Island School, welcomed nearly 300 visitors over a weekend last month.

It was a last chance for people to look around the site, meet old friends and sift through photographs of photographs and press clippings.

With million pound plans to knock down the school and site it, the school, which covers 10 acres, to make way for 150 houses were approved last year.

Memories became part of the school's last day as the site was to be demolished and the ground was to be cleared.

Visitors were also treated to a performance by The Island's Top Music class - who in 2008 had lessons at an other school site.

Headteacher Dr. Hilday said: "It was such a privilege to meet the many different people who have been influenced by their education here."

"It will be an iconic site in the future."

Development plan for park

A MAJOR new manufacturing development is under way at Abingdon Business Park.

Proctor will comprise four high-tech industrial units covering nearly 100,000 sq ft and will be completed by May 2014.

The units will be completed by May 2014.

Kim Sander, European director at Proctor, said: "While there has been significant reinforcement of the building and re-landscaping of the park, the new development is a high specification project, taking over Abingdon Business Park at 100."

The new buildings are designed to attract private high-tech companies needing high quality facilities. Internal staff and easy access to major road networks.

£750 fine for illegally dumping waste

A MAN has been ordered to pay £750 by Southwark Magistrates Court after he tipped in the bins.

Last month the court found that a 35-year-old man, who lives in a council house in Southwark, had been caught on CCTV dumping waste, including a washing machine, in a council-owned bin. The man was ordered to pay a £750 fine for illegally dumping waste.

Share your talent at charity's show

By George Welch

BRICOTT's answer to Simon Cowell will run his professional eye over the local talent on his television show, It's That Talent.

Andy Baker, the founder of our charity of the year fundraising group PlayGloves, will be a judge at It's That Talent on Saturday November 16. The 29-year-old is calling on the talent and wonderful entertainment of the town to step forward and help not just PlayGloves but also OPCS Children in Need support what takes place the day before.

Andy of Great Western Drive, said, "This will be an amazing tale on the popular show and should show up the local talent exceptional."

"I don't have lots of talent either, it's a serious show, not a talent show. I'm a teacher at St. James' Catholic School, including Art, English, Science and Music. I'm a very good teacher and I'm a very good teacher. I'm a very good teacher and I'm a very good teacher."

"I know there are lots of the talent, including the talent of the talent. I know there are lots of the talent, including the talent of the talent. I know there are lots of the talent, including the talent of the talent."

Andy Baker is helping the show will bring lots of talent out of the woodwork later this month.

The talent contest forms part of a charity day at Westmorland Leisure Centre, next to St. James' Catholic School. The talent contest will be held at the school and will be held at the school. The talent contest will be held at the school and will be held at the school.

Cadets praised for their work

OPCS Cadets were praised for their work on a 10-week training programme last week. Seven new cadets were welcomed at an induction ceremony last week marking the end of a 10-week training programme.

Having been in the first and having passed their skills, the cadets will continue to build on their existing knowledge. They have also taken part in a variety of activities, including a visit to the local police station and a visit to the local police station.

Assistant Chief Inspector Adrian Hall said, "The cadets have worked very hard over the summer and their families should be very proud. The cadets are a very valuable part of our organisation. They have shown that they are willing to work exceptionally hard and have been a huge asset to the team." The cadets will continue to build on their existing knowledge. They have also taken part in a variety of activities, including a visit to the local police station and a visit to the local police station.

Smoke alarm helps woman to safety

A WOMAN was alerted to a fire in a bathroom at her home in Chesham Road to a smoke alarm.

The fire alarm had the house had started in a bathroom for a bathroom fan, which had set fire to curtains and towels.

The incident happened on the afternoon of Sunday October 20.

Incident commander, station manager Martin Day said: "The alarmers took nearly the right action after discovering the fire. She got out, stayed calm and called 999 to get the fire service out."

"There was a bit of hot smoke at a very low level in the part of the house on fire, and this could easily have increased the danger had the visitors into the affected part of the property... her quick and decisive action ensured the fire service were called and had delay and that she did not place herself in danger."

Help stub out illegal tobacco use

By Eve Armstrong

SHIPPEN dogs will play a key part in a major initiative on illegal tobacco at Chesham.

The county council has launched a campaign to raise awareness of the issue and lobby for tougher laws to protect public health.

Smaller dogs, Shippens and Tays, who have already been used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases.

The initiative aims to use a first machine, which will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases.

Also on standby are trading standards officers who will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases, will be used in a number of cases.

John Whitford, deputy leader of the county council, said: "Illegal tobacco is a threat to children because it is sold at a profit, money goes to criminals who are not interested in taking any risk."

He said: "There is a lot of work being done across the county to tackle illegal tobacco, but we need public support to help us."

Illegal tobacco makes it easier for children to get smoking, so it is sold cheaply, and can make criminals more attractive to criminals who may have been involved in other crimes.

For those being a criminal crime, the illicit trade is connected to drug trafficking, money laundering, firearms and other crimes. The tobacco companies and smuggling firms.

Jeff Korman, spokesman for the trading standards at Chesham County Council, said: "This is one of our top priorities for action, it is only because smoking increases the use of the UK's biggest source of government revenue, but we also have the availability of cheap, illegal tobacco helps to make the most profitable of smokers and undermines our initiatives to help achieve quit smoking."

WHY enter dancing in what could be better than a trip to the sunshine of the Greek islet?

And if you can't go there, at least go to the Greek islet in the heart of London. The Mamma Mia! Musical is now on tour in the heart of London.

Mamma Mia! is Judy Cropper's exciting tale of family and friendship set on a Greek island paradise told through ABBA's timeless songs.

Today, it has been seen by more than 60 million people worldwide and was made into a hugely popular movie starring Meryl Streep, Julia Roberts, Pierce Brosnan and Colin Firth.

Choose now an independent hotel on the coast and a preparing for her daughter is sending that little degree into a spin. She's already taken a few men from her mother's past in the hope of finding out which one is her real father and finding him doesn't help down the road.

Working a deal with a very long and unimpressive string of girlfriends and the result is a woman who has you dancing in the street.

Mamma Mia! opens on November 14 and runs until November 30. Tickets are available from the New Theatre box office on George Street by calling 0844 811 0000 or by going to virginia.com

The stars over Oxford will enjoy a live set of a special fireworks display on Saturday thanks to the Oxford Round Table.

The charity group is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its annual show in South Park with a special fireworks display.

Over the years Oxford Round Table has raised more than £100,000 for local charities.

Chris Longueville, Oxford Round Table's executive director, said: "This year's Oxford Round Table display in South Park will be a very special celebration of 50 years of the club and will be a fantastic night for everyone. We are very proud that since the first display in 1967 we have been able to give over £100,000 to help local charities."

Over the 50 years, Oxford Round Table has helped a SpecialEffect such "Donations such as the Oxford Round Table help us to continue to support many severely disabled people enjoying some very real benefits to their everyday life not least an element of freedom and control - being involved in our own lives and making completely dependent lives."

Oxford Round Table also helped Oxford Road Race purchase a new set of lights and distribute surplus food supplies. Facilities coordinator David Rogers delighted saying it enabled them to collect and deliver more food to local charities."

Gardeners' Questions

Q Wooden fence panels just don't seem to last - is there a more cost-effective alternative?

A The Colourfence system has been tested under extreme conditions and it's proven to last for up to 25 years. Unlike your wooden fence - once professionally installed - Colourfence really will stay up.

Q No matter what I build my wooden fence with - nothing seems to prevent it rotting or looking shabby for very long.

A Treating your fence is a time-consuming and expensive task. It's also a living battle. Most simply want a low-maintenance alternative where by an occasional wash down will keep it looking great for up to 25 years GUARANTEED!

White and black composite fence with a decorative top rail.

"I honestly believe that Colourfence is the best general purpose fencing product on the market today!"

A good time to be a girl

Said our CEO, Cheryl Giovannoni, speaking to the Girls Day School Trust

While there is continual media coverage of antisocial, misogyny, terrorism, there are also a vast majority of girls who are far stronger, resilient, open-minded, and braver than they are given credit for. That can be incredibly empowering for a girl's school, and Oxford High is embracing the challenges of how to prepare our students for the wider world, the three roles as future leaders and as happy individuals.

To do this requires continual innovation and understanding of the ways girls learn. Our 360 Programme for Sixth Form offers a very different approach to academic achievement, developing leadership, and nurturing self-belief. This academic year, we launch our very own MOOC in partnership with FutureLearn and the GDST. This enhances the Perspectives instead of the 360 focusing on 'us, my community and my world' and includes life skills such as understanding personal finance and networking delivered via a tech platform that reflects the digital age our students inhabit.

We believe every girl who is bright and keen should have the opportunity to fulfil her potential regardless of financial circumstances. Almost one in five of pupils at GDST schools receives a bursary or scholarship to help towards fees and our long-standing relationship with the GDST Scholarship Programme provides life-changing bursary funding for girls entering OHS from the state sector.

If you are interested in studying at Oxford High, contact us now on Tel: 01865 318500 or Email: admissions@ohs.ght.net

I like the body colored dark past and the entire speaks which gives it a better feel all round. The ones are very good and hold you firm.

There is also an array of add-ons such as 20-inch large black alloy wheels, electric front windows, dual fog lamps, manual air conditioning, a 14.9W radio including colour display with map in and SD card, USB ports, six speakers and Bluetooth, rear seat headrest, split 60/40, remote central locking and cruise control.

To Sum Up

It's a great little car for doing the school run and for all the times when you need to top someone to its little rally throne.

There is no doubt in my mind that Citrus will live with you for a very long time and you will instantly replace it with another when the time is right.

To be honest it's like your second little friend that will make you feel happy every time you turn the tap to go off on another tide adventure. www.citrus.com

Thame tame Town with 5-0 win

By George Walsh

FA Trophy

THAME UNITED have been rewarded with another bonus in their first FA Trophy win.

Mark Worrell's side, fresh from crushing Worcester Town 5-0 in Saturday, have been drawn against Watling in the second qualifying round on November 11.

Barnet United are also through but needed Thursday's reply to overcome Totton Town and set up an away tie against fellow 4th South South Division outfit Farnborough.

Barnet's Kollington was to progress following their 4-1 defeat to Slough Town at York Road.

Thame trounced the north road in a game that was tied up shortly before full time.

A Stephen Davis hat-trick of 2, 26 & 30 minutes and Don West (32) and Harry Waples (35) goals achieved the colossal damage on measure of a first half.

They now face Watling who play a level above in the South League Premier. Although they are bottom

Two men Barnet's against into the bottom of the league Watling Town 1-0 after extra time at the Watling First Mile Community Stadium on Tuesday.

The Farnham won 4-0 early on thanks to Charles Kinnear's first for the club, but led behind following Sam Skewton's red card.

Skewton, equipped with some momentum in getting over his 100th birthday, was sent off in the 10th minute.

Skewton failed to do the job on Saturday when they were away in a 2-0 defeat to deal 2-0 in the 10th minute.

Skewton (30) and Steve Lewis (30) goal United 4-0 in the 10th minute, but a second half onslaught, with David West and Cillian Ball in leading Red Barnet did what they needed to do on Saturday to set up a possible qualifying tie against Watling.

A Matt Lewis strike helped Slough to a comfortable 4-1 win over Killingworth, who suffered defeat for the first time in eight games.

Killingworth's goal was 4-1 with 10 minutes to go, but a second half onslaught, with David West and Cillian Ball in leading
